McALESTER COMES BACK

DEFENDS HIS ACTIONS AS ACTING GOVERNOR—RAPS CRUCE HARD FOR CRITICISM.

McAlester, Ok., Aug. 4.—Col. J. J. McAlester, the lieutenant governor, discussed today the action of Gov. Cruce in revoking orders made by him Saturday. He said in part:

"I may be 'Mr. McAlester' today, but I was 'Gov. McAlester' Saturday, and talked to 'Mister Lee Cruce' over the telephone at the golf links in Kansas City, where he was playing. It was my duty, made so by the constitution, to act as Governor of Oklahoma when Gov. Cruce was out of the state.

"That Gov. Cruce was grossly discourteous to me is plainly shown by his leaving the state without notifying me and attempting to keep his absence a secret. His office force was discourteous and attempted to keep me from acting as governor. The records were locked up and the clerks left.

"In reply to the expression of sympathy on the part of the governor, I merely say that if showing sympathy for those who are suffering, if mercy for little children and careworn wives is weakness, I have been weak all my life and I thank God for it."

Asked about the school board contracts, he said: "I did that because there are thousands of children in this state involved in the issue, the public schools being drawn into a squabble between Gov. Cruce and other departments. I suppose Gov. Cruce didn't like what I did up there Saturday. Anyway, he talks like it didn't suit him. But I want to say to him and to every other man in Oklahoma that I always do what I think ought to be done. There are men still living who know that as a young man and during the dangers of war, I never shirked a duty or feared to act; and there are men living here who know that during the trying days in the early settlement of this country I was not a coward."

Rise and Fall of Smith.

San Francisco, Cal., Aug. 5.—Rated only a year or two ago among the great multi-millionaires of America, Francis M. Smith, widely known as the "Borax King," appeared before Judge Morrow in the United States district court today to show cause why he should not be adjudged a bankrupt on debts amounting approximately to $150,000.

The petition filed by Smith's creditors declares that prior to May 5, when a committee was appointed to act as trustees in managing his affairs, he conveyed without money consideration properties valued at $1,000,000 to the Mercantile Trust Company, to B. F. Edwards and to his wife at a time when he was insolvent. These transfers, it is alleged in the complaint, constitute acts of bankruptcy.

Smith's career is one of the romances of modern American finance. Born in the town of Richmond, Wis., about sixty-five years ago, he spent his boyhood and youth on his father's farm. At the age of twenty-one he came West and in 1872 he discovered the great borax deposits in Nevada. After years of labor he secured a monopoly of the product and from that time his financial success was one of the wonders of the West. Eventually he became the head of a two-hundred million dollar string of corporations. His personal fortune has been estimated at many millions.

Western Shooters Gather at Omaha.

Omaha, Neb., Aug. 5.—Scores of trap-shooting experts gathered at Townsend Park today for the opening of the eighth annual Western handicap tournament of the Interstate association. The shooting will continue through Thursday and will be conducted under the auspices of the Omaha Gun Club. Today's program consisted of ten 15-target events and a special event of 25 pairs of targets. The Western Handicap, 100 single targets each man, will be contested on the last day of the tournament. The winner will receive a substantial cash prize in addition to the championship trophy offered by the association.

GOVERNOR DETERMINED

QUESTIONS RIGHT OF McALESTER TO ACT DURING HIS ABSENCE FROM STATE.

Oklahoma City, Ok., Aug. 4.—Tomorrow or next day an original case involving a writ of habeas corpus will be filed in the criminal court of appeals for release of one of the inmates of the state penitentiary to whom Col. J. J. McAlester, acting as governor in the absence of Gov. Cruce from the state, issued a pardon late Saturday night. Norman R. Haskell, attorney to bring the suit, said he did not know which one of the prisoners' names would be employed, but that the action would serve to test the governor's contention that he had control of the pardons until prisoners are released from custody.

Late yesterday afternoon one of the pardons issued Saturday night was presented to Deputy Warden Fry at the State prison, but acting under prior orders from the governor he refused to recognize it. It is admitted that the question is a close legal one, involving decisions from many states, and will turn on the point, it is said, of when an executive pardon becomes effective. Attorneys who will bring the test suit hold to the opinion that this time is when the pardon is "constructively" delivered to the prisoner and that such delivery is accomplished when it is placed in the possession of the prisoner's agent.

If you Value Your Eyesight see An Expert Optometrist I have spent 20 years preparing myself to perfect the refraction of the eye. My modern equipment, backed by this long experience is your Guarantee of Satisfaction. A.D. Coon, Ramsey Drug Co., Ada, Ok.

One of the pardons issued by Col. McAlester, all agree, is beyond the control of Gov. Cruce, assuming that his position to recall pardons is good. That was the one issued in favor of Ben Bonds of Shawnee, under sentence of five years for bribery. He was convicted in the District Court of Pottawatomie County and the sentence was affirmed by the Criminal Court of Appeals, and a motion for rehearing was pending. Bonds was free on bail awaiting the outcome of his case, and after the acting Governor affixed his signature to the papers it was handed to Bonds, and he departed with it.

Before leaving for Ardmore this morning to drive the first spike in the construction of the Ringling railroad, Gov. Cruce reiterated his intention to test the question in all its phases, one of them being whether the lieutenant governor has authority under the constitution to act as governor during the temporary absence of the governor from the state.

That section of the constitution which controls reads:

"In case of impeachment of the governor, or of his death, failure to qualify, resignation, removal from the state or inability to discharge the powers and duties of the office, the said office, with its compensation, shall devolve upon the lieutenant governor for the residue of the term or until the disability shall be removed."

While the question of authority of the lieutenant governor to act at all during the temporary absence of the governor from the state bobs up in the textbook controversy as well as that affecting the pardons, Gov. Cruce presents an additional one. He will contend, it is understood, that when he declined to approve the book contracts, it amounted to his disapproval of them, therefore, the Acting governor's signature to the documents imparts no validity.

An alias warrant was sworn out this morning by D. K. Pope, County Attorney, for the arrest of B. H. Updike, another of the men pardoned by the Acting Governor Saturday night. Updike is serving a life term for the murder of P. D. Anderson. The alias warrant revived the charge of murder against Updike for the death of A. C. Christensen, and Sheriff Binton today required the penitentiary officials to hold Updike pending arrival of the alias warrant in the event Saturday's pardon is made effective.

Great Western Circuit Starts.

Decatur, Ill., Aug. 5.—The season of the Great Western Circuit of trotting and pacing meetings was inaugurated at the local track today. Several hundred horses, representing many important stables, are here, and all indications point to a successful meeting.

The Great Western Circuit has mapped out an ambitious schedule for the present season. There will be three solid months of racing, during which time more than a quarter of a million dollars will be distributed in purses. From here the horses will go to Peoria and then to Galesburg. After the Galesburg meeting the circuit will follow a continuous line of state fairs, including those of Iowa, Minnesota, Wisconsin, Michigan, Missouri, Illinois, Texas and Arizona.

MCLEATH MAY LEASE LOUISIANA RANCH

Joe McElreath, member of the firm of cattle buyers and ranchmen, of Oklahoma, who last spring purchased $100,000 worth of cattle in this vicinity, is in Lake Charles for the combined purpose of making additional purchases and leasing a pasture which would be used for breeding purposes.

When Mr. McElreath was here in the spring, his firm was impressed with the value of this section as a place for cattle breeding, the mild climate they thought being particularly adaptable to the rearing of young stock to be fattened for the market in a more northern climate.

Mr. McElreath said at that time that he believed that if cattle were grown here for the first couple of years of their life and then removed north, much better stock would be attained, and his firm is now bent on trying the plan.

Mr. McElreath will look around for a pasture of suitable size and character, and will probably make a lease. He says that the thing he is most concerned about as against the proposition is the presence of so many mosquitoes, feeling that they cannot but inflict injury to stock, which might be very noticeable.

The Oklahoma cattle man says he finds stock for sale here being held for prices higher than the market, and as yet has made few purchases.—Lake Charles (La.) American.

J. R. HOUNSHELL MAKES SOME GRADE ON EXAMINATION

COTTON CROP DOING WELL IN MOST PLACES

(By J. B. Turner.)

Ideal weather prevailed in all states east of the Mississippi river, rains being abundant and temperatures normal. As a result the crop made excellent growth and at the same time set fruit heavily. Very fine reports are received and some correspondents think conditions equal to those of 1911. In Arkansas, Louisiana and Oklahoma the weather was also favorable and in northern Texas as well.

Complaints of excessive dryness and heat, however, come from central, eastern and southern Texas and it is apparent that considerable deterioration occurred during the week, for the plant is shedding and has ceased to set fruit and develop normally for the season. The deterioration is as yet in its incipency in northern parts of central Texas but has gone much further in south central counties and bolls are beginning to open rapidly. It is not yet too late however for a general rain to do great good.

Boll weevil damage is more apparent than earlier in the season in Mississippi, Louisiana and Southern Texas and in localities serious losses have occurred. In Mississippi the crop outside of the weevil district is fully up to normal or 100 per cent and since the area in weevil-infested sections has been reduced the state's condition averages high. Broadly speaking the crop did well over 75 per cent of the area and stood still or deteriorated over 25 per cent.

By States:
North Carolina—There was just a trifle too much rain in southeast portion. Otherwise week very fine. Crop growing fast and fruiting heavily and there is every promise for large yield. Some correspondents put condition several points higher than last year.

South Carolina—Some reports are brilliant and predict bumper yield with favorable August. Crop growing and fruiting rapid and looks flourishing. Sufficient rainfall. A few correspondents note excessive rainfall.

Georgia—Cotton improving steadily and some correspondents say that except for poor stands crop as good as in 1911. Slight excess rains in southern counties and sunshine generally desirable.

Alabama—Crop being laid by and promise very fine. Some excessive rains but no damage yet. Heavily fruited. Everybody expects good crop.

Mississippi—Except for weevil week's developments were altogether favorable. Plant in northern part of state out of weevil districts is heavily fruited and promises large yield. Southern part shows greater weevil damage than heretofore with prospects for half crop.

Tennessee—Excellent promise and high percentage condition maintained. Soil in nearly perfect cultivation. Some localities would be benefitted by rain.

Arkansas—Crop maintained its position during week and is generally quite promising being as whole best that state has had in several years. Boll weevils are more numerous in southern counties.

Louisiana—Generally favorable week although excess of rainfall in sections. Boll weevils have done considerable damage but promise is for best crop in recent years.

Oklahoma—Probably two-thirds of state's area has had rain and is doing well. The other third is too dry for the good of the plant, which is, however, stocky and well fruited. In many places rains have been light and general precipitation would be beneficial.

Texas—North of a line drawn east and west through Dallas cotton is doing well sufficient rains having fallen. South of that line deterioration has set in that grows progressively greater southward. It is not yet too late for general rains to give relief, but considerable shedding has already taken place and in the southern counties the damage from boll weevils is greater than at first anticipated. Western Texas has had considerable relief from rain. Cotton is opening rather freely.

HALL FINDS NO PLACE AS GOOD AS ADA

Evidently G. W. Hall, who left Ada some days ago, intending to settle somewhere in South Texas, is yearning for Ada and although he does not say so, it is a safe bet that he will be showing up here again one of these days. He is at Paris at present, having just come from his tour of the state further south. He writes as follows:

"I have been through to the Gulf of Mexico. Nothing down there but prickly pears, Mexicans and boll weevil. Everything is burned up. What little cotton there is down there is open; picking is in progress, guns running in full blast.

"We are not located yet. Old Oklahoma looks good to me. Towns where I have been are away behind the times. Corpus Christi has not a paved street in it, a town of 16,000 people. The street cars had to stop running on account of the water one day while I was there.

If you see anyone wanting to leave Ada you tell him that he will not find a town anywhere that is as nice to live in as Ada. There is nothing in South Texas I would have.

Very truly yours,
G. W. HALL.

S. M. FORD BRINGS IN FIRST OPEN BOLL

That the cotton season is close at hand was evidenced this morning by S. M. Ford, who lives two miles east of Ada. He brought the first open boll of the season to the News office from which it would appear that he will give the man who brings in the first bale a good run for his money. In times past he has won the first bale premium and this early boll indicates that he is as wide awake as ever along that line.

Teething babies always have a hard time of it when this process occurs in hot weather. They not only have to contend with painful gums but the stomach is disordered, bowels loose and the body uncomfortable. The best help you can give the little sufferer is McGEE'S BABY ELIXIR. It corrects sour stomach, cools and quiets the bowels and helps digestion. Price 25c, and 50c, per bottle. Sold by Ramsey Drug Co.

Mrs. F. F. Brydla entertained the Lozang club on Tuesday afternoon at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Ramsey, in honor of Mrs. I. Harris of Ada, Okla. Bridge was the diversion of the afternoon, during which time delicious punch was served. After the games, an elaborate three-course luncheon was enjoyed. Prizes were won by Mrs. Bert Slaughter and Mrs. A. B. Claudon, Jr.—Fairbury (Ill.) Local Record.

J. W. Boyle of Coalgate spent the day in Ada working in the interest of the repeal of Sec. 18 of the coal mining law. Mr. Boyle mined coal for twenty-six years of his life, working in no fewer than eleven states. Twenty-four years ago he moved to where Coalgate now stands and has lived there ever since, taking part in all the movements for the betterment of that section. At statehood he was elected county commissioner and filled the office with credit to himself.

Blood is Purified Quickly in Summer

Here is a Remedy that has Wonderful Action and Promotes Health.

S. S. S. Makes Your Blood Purifies Your Blood

Mingling with your food, arousing stomach action, absorbed immediately into your blood, the famous remedy known as S. S. S. has a wonderful action. Its main purpose is to stimulate cellular activity or that peculiar process which instantly changes the worn-out cells for the new red blood corpuscles.

The medicinal value of the components of S. S. S. is relatively just as vital to healthy blood as the nutrient obtained from grain, meat, fats, sugars or any other part of our daily food is to the natural reconstructive requirements of the tissues. And there is one component of S. S. S. which serves the active purpose of stimulating the cellular tissue to a healthy and judicious selection of its own essential nutriment. Thus, in cases of skin disease such as eczema, acne, herpes, tetter or psoriasis, first purify your blood with S. S. S. so it will enable the tissues to rebuild their cellular strength and regain their normal health.

S. S. S. is purely a botanical product, and you will make a great mistake to have some enthusiast palm off a mineral preparation that may do you irreparable harm.

S. S. S. is prepared by The Swift Specific Co., 191 Swift Bldg., Atlanta, Ga., and if you have any obstinate skin trouble, write to their Medical Department for free advice. It will be worth your while to do so.

SEVEN SCOUTS NOW

IN FIRST RANK

Scoutmaster T. O. Cullins is proud of the fact that seven out of forty-five of his scouts have passed the rigid test required for admission to the first class. These are Guy Woodward, Harold Constant, Guy Young, Ed Brents, T. O. Cullins, Jr., Floyd Haynes, Vivian Powers. All the others had an even break with these and it is to be hoped that several more will be able to pass before another month rolls around.

Horan & Van, the vaudeville stars, who made such a hit with the audience at the Airdome yesterday evening will appear there again this evening in a two act novelty. Baby Eugene, the 3-year-old comedian, wins everybody. Three good pictures in addition.

The Majestic offers its patrons two good pictures this evening. "A Ranchman's Revenge" is a popular western story featuring Lionel Barrymore. Then comes the laughable comedy: "Don't Worry" You won't worry if you see this.

"Ashes" is the title of a two-reel drama that will be presented at the Desota this evening. In it is shown the reverie of an old man who brings to the vision of the audience the various girls whom he had loved in his youth and the story of each.

SYNOPSIS.

CHAPTER I—Gloria Kerr, a motherless girl who has spent most of her life at school, arrives at her father's home in Belmont. David Kerr is the political boss of the town and is anxious to prevent his daughter learning of his real character.

CHAPTER II—Kendall, representing the Chicago packers, is negotiating with Judge Gilbert, Kerr's chief adviser, for a valuable franchise. They fear the opposition of Joe Wright, editor of the reform paper.

CHAPTER III—Kerr asks the assistance of Judge Gilbert in introducing Gloria to Belmont society and promises to help him put through the packers' franchise and let him have all the graft.

CHAPTER IV—Gloria meets Joe Wright at the Gilberts. It appears they are on intimate terms, having met previously in a touring party in Europe.

CHAPTER V—Gloria twists Wright on his failure to keep an engagement to meet her in Paris. He explains that the death of his mother prevented his going to Paris.

CHAPTER VI—The Gilberts invite Gloria to stay with them pending the refurnishing of the Kerr home.

CHAPTER VII—One society bud who refused to meet Gloria is forced to do so when her father is made to feel Kerr's power.

CHAPTER VIII—Wright begins his fight against the proposed franchise in the columns of his paper, the Belmont News.

CHAPTER IX—Kerr, through his henchmen, exerts every influence to hamper Wright in the publication of his paper.

CHAPTER X—Gloria realizes she is not being received by the best society and is unhappy. She takes up settlement work.

CHAPTER XI—Kerr and his henchmen decide to buy Kerr's paper and ask the editor to meet them at Gilbert's office.

CHAPTER XII—Wright in his desire to keep from Gloria knowledge of her father's position, avoids her during the fight. Gloria is piqued.

CHAPTER XIII—Calling at Gilbert's office to solicit a donation Gloria meets Wright. He proposes and is accepted while waiting to be called into the conference.

CHAPTER XIV—Wright refuses to sell his paper and declares he will fight to a finish.

CHAPTER XV—The Belmont News appears with a bitter attack on Kerr. Gloria calls Wright a coward and refuses to listen to any explanation from him.

CHAPTER XVI—Broken-hearted, Gloria decides to plunge more deeply into settlement work.

CHAPTER XVII—She calls on a sick girl of the underworld named Ella.

CHAPTER XVIII—She learns for the first time that her father is the head of a notorious gang of political grafters.

CHAPTER XIX—Sounds of a conflict are heard in the room over Ella's. Gloria finds Wright unconscious, a victim of an attempted assassination by thugs in the pay of the political ring. She hides him in Ella's room and defies the thugs.

CHAPTER XX—She awes them by announcing that she is Kerr's daughter. Ella threatens to give up Wright to the thugs and is choked into unconsciousness by Gloria, who then falls unconscious on Wright's body.

CHAPTER XXI—They are rescued by Dr. Hayes and his wife. Wright is taken to a hospital and Gloria is taken to the Hayes home. Wright decides to sell his paper and leave Belmont.

Gloria looked at her father in astonishment. Wright did not interrupt him, wishing to hear all that he had to say. "This campaign's taught me I'm growin' old. Some day somebody's got to take my place. There ain't a man in the party with your sense. I need you, an'—what's more—you'll profit by bein' with me."

"Mr. Kerr, it won't take me many words to give you your answer."

Reading disapproval in the remark, David Kerr craftily replied with his kindest manner, "Take yer time, take yer time. The more you think it over, the more you'll like it. Besides, I'm thinkin' of Gloria. You two talk it over. She's—"

"Father!" The girl was perfectly horrified and her sense of the fitness of things outraged by having her name dragged into the discussion. "Would you dare connect my name with such an affair!"

To the coarse nature all things are coarse, and her father seemed surprised that she should resent the manner in which he had connected her with the offer. "An' why not?" he asked. "I've been thinkin' the matter over, an' you an' him would make a pretty good team."

"Oh!" Gloria's disgust was unspeakable. Mere rage was useless to express her feelings. She gave her father one withering look and turned away, walking up and down the room like a caged animal.

Kerr turned to Wright, since Gloria appeared to have no inclination to listen. "So I argues, why not fix it up between us?" Then he spoke to his daughter in explanation, "Not knowin' you'd be here. But it's just as well. Now, Mr. Wright, what I say is this: This town wants somebody to run it. Belmont can't git along without somebody to keep the wheels greased. I'll put the paper on its feet for you, an' gradually—as gradually as you like—you kin come over to my way of thinkin'. Then what'd be more natural than let you to take over the runnin' o' things—especially as you'd be my son-in-law?"

Wright was about to make reply, but Gloria was too quick for him. Stamping her foot with rage, she paused before her father defiantly.

"Oh, this is more than I can bear! Am I a dog, a horse, a pig, that I can be traded in a dirty deal with not so much as 'by your leave'?" I'll not stand it for another instant. One humiliation after another has been my lot, but this is the last. I'm through with you. What has passed has taught you nothing; you're the bargaining, trading, scheming politician still, so low that you'd make your own daughter, your own flesh and blood, the bait to lure a good man from his purpose. But you can't do it," she cried, a note of triumph creeping into her denunciation; "he's not your kind. And do you believe that I'd submit to such a thing? What can you think of me? You put me on a plane with those vile creatures who pay you for protection."

"Gloria, please stop!" Wright pleaded. Her father could only look at her in wonder as she poured out the pent-up passion of her inmost soul.

"No, I'll not stop—there's more to say. Here, within this hour, Mr. Wright asked me again to be his wife, and I refused—refused because of you. I came here to warn him against you, to tell him the truth, because once we loved each other. No one can blame me for wishing him well. I came to tell him because I can't be here after this to save him as once I did. Over my body I dared your hirelings to take him, and not one moved. Now I'm going away forever and I want him to have what protection the truth will give. But my warning would be useless; what you offered to do just now is warning enough in itself. The man who would sell his own daughter is capable of anything!"

"You Kin Come Over to My Way of Thinkin'."

"Please, Gloria, stop," Wright entreated. "I'm not accustomed to have any one else fight my battles for me. I can take care of myself."

"May be you can," sneered the boss, "but ever since you've been here you've been hidin' behind my daughter. It's because o' her I didn't go after you but an' heavy long ago. An' then when they did come near gittin' you the other day, she stopped 'em."

"You, Gloria!" Wright could not understand. She only bowed her head.

"But now, by God! that's all past." Kerr brought his fist down on the table with a bang. His breath came in apoplectic gasps and his face was livid with rage. "She's out of it as far as I'm concerned. I did everything in the world for her, an' it wasn't no use." He turned to his daughter as he hurled out his anger and disappointment between his gasps for breath. "I was ready to stan' by you to the end, an' what do I git fer all my schemin' an' plannin' fer you? Nothin' but glum looks an' harsh words. If yer goin' away, go. I disown you. I cast you off."

The girl did not quail beneath his bitter words. They only inflamed her to announce the decision she had already made. Her lip curled with scorn, her eyes snapped, as she looked at her father.

"You disown me! You cast me off!" All the contempt she could muster she threw into her voice. "What right have you, who would barter me away as you would a horse or dog? No, it's I disown you!"

Wright walked over to her and sought to take her hand gently in his, but she drew away. She would stand alone. Like a blind old bear David Kerr seemed to grope his way to the door. There he turned to gaze once more upon the wreck of his latest schemes. His rage was still hot upon him.

"I found you in this—this adventurer's room. I leave you here. Look to yourself, you are no child o' mine."

The door banged behind him and Gloria Kerr knew that they had met for the last time. The girl, feeling so miserably alone in the world, turned to find bent upon her the tender gaze of the man whom she had once sworn to follow to the end of the world. For them love was dead, she knew, and now life would be for her only a succession of weary days.

"I thought all but my body died that day we spoke of love to find it but a dream," she acknowledged sadly, "yet there was one cup still more bitter I had to drain—and this was that cup's dregs."

"Oh, Gloria, believe me, out of unhappiness happiness comes. Your place is with me now. I hadn't told you, but I, too, am going away forever. And what is more, I'm going to take you with me."

She looked at him in wonder, then slowly shook her head.

"No, you can't leave Belmont, Joe. You're not a coward. I'm going, but your place is here."

"Do you think I shall let you go alone? Never. The one reason I am going east is to sell the Belmont News. I'm through with it. Then I shall follow you over the world until I make you mine—because I love you."

The girl looked at him with the faintest of smiles battling with her settled melancholy. He was bordering on melodrama, and she was regarding him with the same gentleness a loving mother exhibits toward an unreasoning little child.

"How selfish you are, Joe. All your fine sermons are going for naught. You've preached of your duty, and yet at the chance to show your devotion to that duty you're wanting to give up the fight. I'm not worth it, Joe, really I'm not. Think of Belmont. A general doesn't desert his soldiers after a victory, just because he knows the enemy has sent for reinforcements. That would be cowardly, and it isn't like you, Joe. The brave general doesn't give ground, he advances. Don't follow me; I would hate you. I know how Belmont needs you."

"But I need you, Gloria. And what is more, you need me and I can't let you go alone. There is a world elsewhere, even other Belmonts where we can live and labor and love. I didn't know till your father referred to it that you were at Noonan's that day. Can't you see how I need you for my guardian angel? How did you happen to be there?"

Briefly she detailed the visit, minimizing her part in saving him. None the less he was able to see that it was to her he owed perhaps life itself. He listened in silence, letting her tell her story in her own way.

"Gloria, I've come to a decision." She looked at him questioningly. "I'm going to do what you've ordered. I'm going to stay here and fight for Belmont."

"Joe, you mean it!" Her face lit up with pleasure and she held out both hands to him. He took them both, and to her surprise, and despite her resistance, drew her to him.

"But I'm not going to stay alone. If I'm to fight the good fight, I'm not going to fight alone. You called me a coward for wanting to go; won't you reward me for deciding to stay? And out of unhappiness happiness will come. You must stay, Gloria; our place is here."

"Our place!" she echoed, and then was silent for a little time, her head upon his shoulder. He held her tightly, she could not escape. The feeble efforts she had made to break from him were now abandoned as she thought more and more upon his words. At last she looked up at him and smiled. "Yes, Joe, our place is here, and our happiness. Right in this room all my old pride died. But there has been born a new pride, a pride in you and in me, and in what it has been given us to do." The tears came into her eyes as she thought of what they were to each other. "You are all I have in the world, dear; you are my world. Make me always proud that I am your wife."

Wright drew her closer to his heart and kissed her. And there in the shelter of his arms she rested. Peace had come to her.

THE END.

A Daring Scout.

Wat Bowie, a scout for the Confederate Army during the Civil War, was a young Maryland lawyer at the time the great conflict began. After months of successful work, he was captured and taken to Washington, and sentenced to be hanged. He made his escape and in "On Hazardous Service," W. G. Beymer tells of the weeks that he was followed by secret service men and small details of Federal cavalry, and how, by his very audacity and quick wit, he escaped recapture.

He blundered into a camp of them one morning at dawn and saw instantly that retreat was impossible; they were ready to open fire with a dozen revolvers. Without hesitation, he strode up to the men and shouted, indignantly:

"You make mighty free with my rails! With all this wood round, you did not need to burn my fences," he seemed very angry.

"Who are you," a corporal stammered.

"The owner of the rails, of course!" And then, apparently somewhat mollified, he went on, "Well, well! War is war, but don't do any more damage than you can help, boys." He sat down with the mto their breakfast, and chatted with them pleasantly. One of them asked if he had seen Wat Bowie, and described him accurately. At the description, they all stared at him, and moved uneasily. In doubt as to what was to be done. He talked with the description in every respect. But his insolence in walking up to them and upbraiding them for burning "his" rails made them doubt their own eyes.

"Why, yes," he drawled, "Wat Bowie was in these parts last week. I know him well. They say he has gone to the north part of the county, where he hails from. I don't know, though, as to that."

Then rising and stretching himself, he looked down into their doubt-filled eyes and laughed at them—laughed in their very faces—and said:

"I'm glad you all met me on my own land. You might have made trouble for me elsewhere, for they all say I look like him a lot. Good-bye, boys! Good luck!"—Youth's Companion.

MASTIC PAINT

A Lesson in Real Economy

Take two houses—both alike—
Spend about $50 to MASTIC PAINT one—
Let the other go unpainted—

Offer them both for sale—You'll wonder why the unpainted house finds no buyer at even $500 less than the MASTIC-PAINTED house will bring.

At the beginning both houses represented equal value.

The Lesson: A few gallons of MASTIC PAINT properly applied at the right time greatly increases the value of your property.

Your building needs painting Right Now, but don't use keglead or hand-mixed paints. It may be cheaper at the start, but is costly and unsatisfactory in the end.

"The Kind That Lasts"

Foxes Bring Fancy Prices.

Edmonton, Alta., Aug. 5.—Seven hundred and fifty-one live foxes, valued at more than $600,000 have been trapped or dug out of their nests in the fur districts north of Edmonton since the beginning of the season. The highest price paid for a pair of black foxes is $20,000. The animals were bought by C. J. Fleming of St. John, N. B., from a half breed Indian trapper at Lac la Biche. T. J. McMann of Edmonton, recently sold 51 fox whelps all colors, for $26,000 to James A.
Kane of Brooklyn, N. Y. who has fox farms in New York and Pennsylvania.
The exportation of live foxes has become so active in northern Alberta that Benjamin Lawton, chief game guardian, has been requested by provincial government to recommend a closed season, the same as there is for other fur-bearing animals. This new law would prohibit the capture of foxes and whelps during the breeding season.

Co-Operation of Texas Farmers.

San Antonio, Tex., Aug. 5.—Striking proof of the success of co-operation among Texas farmers was afforded here today by the large and representative attendance at the opening of the eleventh annual meeting of the Farmers' Educational and Co-operative Union of Texas. Greatest interest is centered in the development of the plans for holding cotton, or at least making the grower independent of those who would prey upon him in the form of collectors of high interest rates or by inducing early sales at reduced prices. Schemes for the valorization of cotton after the plan of the coffee arrangement in Brazil are to be presented. Such important questions as crop diversification, more intensive cultivation, improved highways, the use of motor traction and the substitution of Mexican for negro labor are to come up for individual and general discussion.

A child that has intestinal worms is handicapped in its growth. A few doses of WHITE'S CREAM VERMI-FUGE destroys and expels worms; the child immediately improves and thrives wonderfully. Price 25c per bottle. Sold by Ramsey Drug Co.

THEIR HONEYMOON

By W. T. HEAD.

Dollie Milburn was the cutest and happiest and coziest little bride in all Millville. She was so very young and so very innocent, so very inexperienced, and altogether so saucy and dancing and childishly irresponsible, that the older girls still unmarried agreed that it was really a shame that such a chit of a child should be allowed to marry and really it must be a great trial to Harry.

Harry, however, managed to struggle along very nicely under the load of his child wife. In fact, shocking as it may seem to appear, he seemed positively to like it. The truth is, Cupid himself had taken possession of the Milburn home and the young couple were living one long dream of bliss. Of course Harry was compelled to spend long hours down town doing foolish things in order that the home could be maintained. But that was only incidental and to be put up with in order that the delightful little doll's house could exist and have its being.

So Harry went whistling to his work among the musty law books and Dollie sang away the day serene in the assurance that he would soon return.

One bright morning when nature itself seemed in the ecstatic mood of the young couple, Dollie stood on the little front porch, watching for Harry's last salute at the corner, whose turn lost him to view, she noticed with the searching eye of love that he had changed his clothes and wore the gray tweed instead of the blue serge he had been wearing of late.
Afterward in clearing up their bedroom, sure enough, she found the discarded blue serge suit piled helter-skelter on a chair and left with the carelessness characteristic of the sons of Adam.

It was then that the great tragedy of her life happened. As she was picking up the coat preparatory to hanging it neatly upon a frame, as was her loving custom, a letter dropped from one of the pockets—a dainty little square envelope such as women use, and carrying the odor of delicate perfume. It fell addressed side up, and the superscription lay there on the bed so close before her eyes that she could not help seeing it. The address was written in a delicate, feminine hand: "Harry Milburn, Esq., Room 930, Security Building, City," and down in the corner was the word, "Personal."

The incident gave her a distinct shock. She stopped her merry whistling in the middle of a bar and looked at the bit of paper with an expression of annoyance growing on her face. What woman was this, writing scented notes to Harry?
And why was it marked personal, and why had he not told her about it? She leaned forward and examined the date stamped on the envelope. It was four days old. And he had not said a word to her about it. Good heavens! was he deceiving her? Was there another woman?
Was he untrue? She gave a little shriek at the very thought.

Then she laughed. It was all most ridiculous. She was nervous or something and was making a mountain out of a mole-hill. Surely a lawyer has to receive communications from clients and witnesses—and all sorts of people. Harry was a man of affairs and not simply a plaything to have about the house. She started to whistle again, when the word "Personal" caught her eye. She stopped again in the middle of a bar and her face again commenced to wrinkle with perplexity.

"I will read the letter and find out," she said. Then she blushed and drew back. The very thought of such a thing filled her with shame.

She determined to put the whole matter out of her mind and went on about her work. But the green-eyed monster had slipped one little ten-tacle into her young heart and somehow she could not whistle or sing as she worked, and her rebellious mind would forever turn to that bit of paper lying on the bed, for she had not had the courage to touch it.

Late in the afternoon she made up her mind to give Harry a good fright anyway. Then he would explain and they would make up in the most lovely manner. And she smiled and blushed softly at the thought of the making up.

So when Harry arrived at early dusk he found no outstretched arms to greet him on the little front porch.
Boasting inside in disappointment and alarm, he found Dollie on her knees beside the bed, with her head in her arms, sobbing.

"Dollie," he exclaimed, "what is it?"

"I found the letter," she sobbed.
"Oh, Harry, how could you?"

He was strangely silent and when he did not come down beside her she glanced quickly up. A great fear entered her soul as she saw his white face and troubled eyes—a fear beside which the worryings of the day were as nothing.

"Dollie," he said, slowly, "I hoped you would not find it. I knew I left it and worried all day lest you should happen to find it. Oh, Dollie, Dollie, I was a blind fool, and the woman got me before I knew what happened, but I hoped to get through it without causing you any worry."

A pall as of the grave settled upon her. She could not have moved if she wanted to.

"Dollie," he said, "cheer up and we will get through this all right."
He laid a hand on her head.

She shrank from him and cried fiercely, "Don't touch me. Don't dare to touch me."

He walked silently from the room and the house. She never moved.
She did not know how long it was,
but after a time he returned and threw himself down beside her.

"It surely is not so serious as all that, Dollie," he said. "I am almost sure I can get the money in such a way that it will not make us pinch very hard. What hurts me most is to have been so glibly as to be fooled by a common adventurer—and the insolent note is the last straw. But you see, Dollie, a man cannot always be wise and we learn some things only from experience. It is a common thing you know, for a lawyer to go on a client's bond, and I had no suspicion she would run away, with all her social connections here."

"What are you talking about?"
she asked.

"Why, I went on the bond of that Mrs. Talson, who was arrested for stealing the furs at the Blakeman house during the reception. And now she has run away and leaves me this insolent note saying I can pay the money and add it to my bill for fees, and then frame the bill. I don't care so much for the money—"

"Money!" shrieked Dollie, springing to her feet. "Money! Is all this about money—only money?"

"Why—what else?" asked Harry,
now bewildered himself.

And a minute later it would have taken a very close analysis to tell which was Dollie and which Harry.

CHINESE AND MILLINERY.

Speaking to a Chinese gentleman the other day, an Englishman asked him if the Chinese ladies will emulate the men and go in for western headgear, in reply he beamed a smile most childlike and bland.
Pressed for something more definite, he remarked: "Did you not know that it is a well-known fact among the Chinese that the reason so many European husbands look harassed and care-ridden and the further reason why so many of your young men refrain from marriage is this very question of millinery? Ladies' hats cost so much that they spell ruin, and so we Chinese have told our womenfolk that we absolutely forbid them to follow western fashions in this regard, whatever they may do in other directions."

AN ALL-NIGHT GAME.

Casey announced to his wife, Ellen, that he was going to the ball game. All day he was gone. Night came, but no Casey to take his place at the head of the table. Midnight and no Casey. One o'clock—two o'clock—three o'clock—no Casey.

As the six o'clock whistles began to blow Casey stumbled up the front stairs into the house and awakened his wife by his efforts to negotiate the stairs.

She hopped out of bed and met her better half in the hallway.

"Well?" said Mrs. Casey, with determination written on her Amazon face.

"Sal-rite, Illin," said Casey, weakly. "The game wuz called on 'count of daylight!"

A SIMPLE ANSWER.

Mother—Well, dears, did you meet anyone you knew?

The Three Children (who have just returned from their morning walk)—Yes; Ruby and Derek.

Mother—Where did you meet them?

Barbara (the youngest)—At the same place as we was—Punch.

CLEAN TOWN CONTEST

Vacant Lots.

Owners of vacant lots are not responding to this clean-up move as they should for no property in the town has any more to gain from the winning of this contest. With few exceptions these vacant lots are covered with weeds, frequently waist high, unsightly and unhealthy to the last degree. Do get them cut, raked up and burnt.

You people who own these lots owe it to the property owners adjacent to you to keep them in shape. You rejoice to see good homes being built near these lots and count on this increasing their value. If the building of these residences has enhanced your property you owe these builders a similar return by keeping your property in shape. Some people who own these homes near your weedy vacant lot are complaining bitterly that you haven't cleaned it. Do this much for your town in this crusade and at the same time help your own property.

The mayor reports considerable progress in the cleaning of these lots but owing to the lateness of the hour and the expanse of them it will require an extra effort to complete the task.

Unsanitary Conditions.

The request has been made before that all open closets be closely enclosed. A board and two stakes will do the work. Please give this your immediate attention.

Let us show up with our barn yards and stables clean and the manure hauled away.

North Ada Ahead.

A somewhat hurried inspection of the city would indicate that North Ada is in better shape for inspection than any other section of the city. The heartiest response to this move has been met there and is duly appreciated by the committees. There are some alleys over there as clean and as closely mown as your front yard.

West seventeenth has too many weed patches and the weedy vacant lots in Sunrise are against us.

"Clansman's" Perennial Success.

"The Clansman," Thomas Dixon's dramatization of his two famous books, "The Leopard's Spots" and "The Clansman," is destined to enjoy perennial success and popularity.

For six years it has been the dramatic sensation of the age and remains today without an equal in the furor it created throughout the entire United States. It has always played to record-breaking business in the Northern as well as Southern cities.

Though playing continually in other sections of the country, "The Clansman" has not been seen in the South for three years. It is for this reason that the Southern Amusement Company has made an elaborate revival of the great drama for a special tour of the south this season, which will mark the seventh triumphal year of its success.

This great play is now being played in the smaller cities for the first time and will be seen here in a big tent on August 8, when it will be seen in a large tent theatre which is more completely equipped than the opera houses of most of the smaller towns.
The reports from mother places this show has been seen last season is that it is a great show and they will no doubt draw a big crowd in Ada.
